Brach Eichler lawyers represent manufacturers and distributors both nationally and internationally. Our clients range from Fortune 500 companies to privately held and/or family-owned companies.

Manufacturing is globally focused. In order to succeed, manufacturers need to partner with advisors who can support them in all major markets. Our supply chain experience is rooted with clients in the material handling, heavy equipment, consumer products, and other manufacturing industries, who depend upon consistency, reliability, and timeliness for a high-volume flow of materials that meets their customers' demands. Our bench of highly skilled litigators provides business-focused representation, helping manufacturers protect their interests while continuing to focus on current operations.

We offer comprehensive legal support to national companies that seek to manufacture outside their corporate headquarters. Our manufacturing lawyers have helped companies with their legal manufacturing needs, focusing on the following:

- Intellectual Property Protection
- Vendor Contracts and Disputes
- Original Equipment Manufacturer Agreements (OEM)
- Non-Disclosure Agreements (NDA)
- Non-Disclosure, Non-Circumvention, Non-Competition Agreements (NNN)
- Licensing Agreements
- Outsourcing Agreements
- Litigation and Dispute Resolution
- Warranty Obligations
