Brach Eichler represents clients in all matters of family law including Divorce, High Net Worth Divorce, Child Custody, Child Support, Separation, and Mediation. We work side-by-side with our clients to identify reasonable objectives and achieve the best possible results. At our firm, our family law attorneys never lose sight of the individuals behind our cases and partner with these clients as they face this turbulent time. We listen to their goals and concerns and proactively seek favorable results on their behalf both in and outside the courtroom.

We represent individuals in a wide range of circumstances, including pre- and post-nuptial agreements; paternity disputes, including issues stemming from reproductive technology and surrogacy; cohabitation agreements and divorces; matters involving “#MeToo” claims brought by or against individuals; and matters arising between same sex couples, whether married or not. Our practice is not limited to “fighting over money.” We regularly represent parents and, at times, grandparents and others with standing, in custody disputes. We make diligent attempts to resolve all issues, particularly custody issues, outside the courtroom.

Whether a client is considering marriage or faces the unfortunate consequences of divorce or a custody, guardianship, or trust dispute, Brach Eichler’s Family Law Services Practice can address every aspect of the impact of these events on the client and the family. This practice is comprised of an interdisciplinary group of attorneys that focus on the personal legal needs of the client in family transition.

The department’s highly skilled attorneys possess a deep knowledge of the legal issues affecting the family and work in conjunction with Brach Eichler’s leading attorneys in the areas of trust and estates, tax, real estate, corporate, business planning, and healthcare. By blending the skills of key lawyers from multiple practices, the Family Law Services Practice addresses the needs of the individual and family in virtually any situation that could arise from marital formation or disruption, including all areas of post-dissolution planning.

These include:

- Pre-marital business planning and agreements
- Dissolution of marriage
- Child support
- Custody and guardianship
- Alimony
- Equitable distribution of assets
- Business valuation, agreements, and advice
- Alternative dispute resolution
- Trusts, and estate planning
- Litigation
- Mediation
- Post-judgment modification and enforcement
- Appeal

While some firms can certainly manage the dissolution of the marriage, including issues that may arise from the marital breakdown, Brach Eichler's size and the strength of its diverse capabilities offer clients an unmatched perspective as well as a cost-conscious approach. The firm's collaborative culture is well suited to providing seamless, integrated services that take multiple factors into consideration, leading to sensible and effective solutions. This sets our firm apart from others that merely focus on marital dissolution.

Years of experience allow the practice to successfully assist clients with a myriad of issues. The Family Law Services Practice Chair, Carl Soranno, is particularly suited to this role. He has served clients in multiple areas across a wide variety of concerns and challenges. In addition to family law matters, Carl's 30 years of experience includes business formation, bankruptcy, and commercial litigation. He is also a businessman and entrepreneur, having successfully launched a public biotechnology firm.

We help our clients determine their goals and objectives and then, with sensitivity and confidentiality, formulate and implement a strategy to make them real. Our goal is to support and guide you through the process of marital planning and divorce with a strategy that minimizes the impact on your family, while sensibly managing costs and protecting your legal rights throughout completion of the case. If post-judgment matters arise, we welcome the opportunity to further serve you by aggressively taking steps to enforce your former spouse's obligations and to protect your rights under any judgment or settlement that has been achieved on your behalf. And if trial is necessary, our attorneys, who are highly skilled negotiators, litigators, and trial attorneys will represent you aggressively through trial and appeal if needed.

Each family law matter is unique. We have experience working with a wide variety of families and individuals with differing priorities, through difficult challenges. We consistently bring to each matter every resource we possess as a firm, for the benefit of each and every client. Our intent is to help our clients successfully enter marriage or conclude their divorce with a fair and equitable settlement that allows them to move forward in a positive way with their lives.
